Joe Schiavi, Director of Sales

An enthusiastic sports professional, I have been in the Sports Sales Industry for 11 seasons; currently in my 5th with the Detroit Pistons. I received my start in sports as a Sales Intern with the Houston Astros in 2008. Following another internship with the San Francisco Dragons, of Major League Lacrosse, I started my career and an Inside Sales Representative with the Houston Astros. I was a member of the Houston Astros Front Office from 2008-2012, advancing from Season Ticket Sales, to Group Sales, and assuming a leadership position on our Group Sales team prior to my departure. I joined the Detroit Pistons in November of 2012, with the primary responsibility of starting an Inside Sales program for Palace Sports and Entertainment. Our program is now coming into it's 4th year, and has promoted over 35 professionals into the Sports Industry. My current role of Director of Sales for Palace Sports and Entertainment allows me to oversee new business strategy for the Detroit Pistons. I graduated from Arizona State University in 2009, with a Degree in Business Administration.

My first job with the Red Wings started in March 2012 in the Inside Sales position. From 2011-2012 I worked for the Aspire Group at the University of Memphis as a ticket sales rep. I graduated from Center Michigan University in May 2011.

Lauren Kalinosky, Group Sales Account Executive/Night Sales Supervisor

Born and raised in Kalamazoo Michigan. I attended Eastern Michigan University to study sports management and competed on the varsity swim team all four years. Started my internship in 2008 with Eastern Michigan University football department. From there, I was given the opportunity to intern with the Plymouth Whalers (OHL) hockey team while I finished up school. March of 2013 I started in Inside Sales with the then Phoenix Coyotes. I spent 5 months in that role and was promoted to Group Sales Representative. 4 months after that, I was promoted to Business Development Account Executive with the Arizona Coyotes. In October of 2015, after about a year and a half with the Coyotes, I was offered a Group Sales Account Executive role with the Red Wings. Now, on top of my duties as a Group Sales AE, I also oversee our Night Sales team.

U-M School of Public Health, Environmental Health Sciences

Prevention is crucial in a world where more than 10,000 people die every day from environmental pollution, with close to 300 of those deaths daily in the United States alone. Environmental Health scientists address and identify solutions to these problems.

The Environmental Health Sciences Association (EHSA) and University of Michigan Industrial Hygiene Students Association (UMIHSA) are both student-run organizations that will be representing the EHS department at the School of Public Health. The students represent the four degrees offered by the department: Environmental Quality and Health, Industrial Hygiene, Toxicology, and Occupational and Environmental Epidemiology.

Today, we are building upon our rich history to solve some of the most pressing issues in environmental health sciences. If you are interested in addressing lead contamination of the water supply, health effects of air pollution, populations vulnerable to climate change, protection of workers' health, the environment and cancer risk, toxicant exposures and preterm birth, or improving water quality in lower income countries, come join us!

Candidate Profile:

We are interested in Health and Fitness and Movement Science students for graduate school opportunities.

Andrea Guytingco (MVS '15), UMIHSA President

Andrea Guytingco is a first year Masters of Public Health candidate in Industrial Hygiene. She is originally from Mount Pleasant, Michigan and completed her undergraduate education in 2015 at the University of Michigan School of Kinesiology with a degree in Movement Science. In the summer of 2015, Andrea worked as an intern with Health Poverty Action (HPA), a non-profit organization based in London, England, which works to improve local policies and practices, educate communities on topics such as sanitation and water safety, and strengthen health services in 12 different countries across Africa, Asia, and Latin America. She was the lead program coordinator for March for Mothers, a 5k walk that raises funds for the maternal health projects HPA manages in Africa and Latin America. With a degree in Industrial Hygiene, Andrea hopes to contribute to safer working conditions and limit workplace exposures with focus on Global Occupational Health.

USA Hockey

USA Hockey is the National Governing Body for the sport of hockey in the United States. While headquarters are based in Colorado Springs, Colorado, the USA Hockey Foundation recently purchased USA Hockey Arena (formerly Compuware Arena) in Plymouth, Michigan. USA Hockey Arena is home to USA Hockey's National Team Development Program, an initiative launched in 1996 to prepare student-athletes under the age of 18 for participation on U.S. National Teams and success in their future hockey careers. USA Hockey Arena also is home to other properties such as the Summer Drive-In and CJ's Brewing Company and hosts numerous other events including international hockey, concerts, graduations, etc.

In 1996, USA Hockey launched a new initiative called the National Team Development Program, originally based in Ann Arbor. In March 2015 the USA Hockey Foundation purchased USA Hockey Arena (formerly Compuware Arena) in Plymouth, which is the new home of the NTDP. In its 20th season of play in 2016-17, the goal of this full-time development program is to prepare student-athletes under the age of 18 for participation on U.S. National Teams and success in their future hockey careers. 283 NTDP players, including 65 first-round pick and four selected first overall, have been taken in the NHL Entry Draft. In the 2015-16 season, 78 alumni played at least one game in an NHL sweater.

The NTDP is comprised of two teams - the U.S. National Under-17 and Under-18 Teams. The Under-17 Team competes in the United States Hockey League and also annually participates in three international events. The Under-18 Team schedule includes games against NCAA DI and DIII opponents and contests versus the USHL, as well as three international tournaments.

Candidate Profile:

We are interested in Sport Management (undergrad and masters) students for internships, shadowing, and volunteer opportunities.

Jake Wesolek, Marketing Manager, Events & Promotions

Jake Wesolek is in his seventh year with USA Hockey's NTDP. His responsibilities include game day operations, promotions and event management, in addition to serving on the marketing team. Previously, Wesolek spent the previous six years running all NTDP communications efforts as the primary media contact for both the Under-17 and Under-18 Teams.

Alyssa Girardi, Brian Fishman Intern

Alyssa Girardi joined USA Hockey in June 2015, as the 17th Brian Fishman Intern. In her current role, Alyssa serves as communications contact for several international tournaments and contributes to USA Hockey Magazine, while assisting with various communications projects and event promotion.

Colin Mayberry, Brendan Burke Intern

Colin Mayberry is USA Hockey's Brendan Burke Intern. Colin's responsibilities include interfacing with the NTDP, national teams, international events and player development camps. He is also involved with USA Hockey's acclaimed American Development Model and Coaching Education Program.

Kris Nolt, Manager, Communications

Kris Nolt enters his first season with the National Team Development Program and the USA Hockey Arena where he will oversee communications efforts, including media relations. Prior to joining the NTDP, Nolt spent time with the Union College (N.Y.) and Robert Morris University (Pa.) sports information offices. During his time at Union, Nolt served as the primary women's hockey media contact and was a secondary contact for the men's hockey team during their 2013-14 NCAA Championship season. At Robert Morris University, Nolt assisted with media relations efforts for the men's and women's hockey teams. A 2013 graduate of Slippery Rock University, Nolt earned his bachelor's degree in sport management.
